CORPORATION ADVOCATE OLINEY.

New York Press.—How much longer is Richard Oliney, the paid servant of the corporations he is employed to prosecute, to remain the Attorney General of the United States? Mr. Cleveland brought lasting dishonor upon us previous Administration by his persistent efforts in defending as the Attorney General's chief law officer the agent of a corporation whose profits depended upon the decisions of the Federal courts. Are we to have another scandal of the Pan-Electric type? Does the President think it a wise thing to embitter his Administration with another Garland in the person of Corporation Counsel Oliney?

No two opinions are possible in regard to Oliney's continued connection as legal counsel and director with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy and Boston and Maine Railroads. It is an offense not alone against professional ethics, but against common fairness and common decency. The conduct of the Attorney General of the Nation should be degraded the nation's interests, completely drawing a huge salary from corporations which he may be required at any time to impeach for offenses against the law in the highest degree shameful and humiliating.

Oliney should get out of the Cabinet. In retaining this regularly engaged corporation champion as Attorney General the President is degrading the Department of Justice. The American people will not tolerate the transformation of the Attorney Generalship into a corporation annex.

BY WHAT RIGHT WAS THE FLAG LOWERED? New York Press.—It is a fortunate thing for Mr. Cleveland that he has been adjourned. If that body had remained in session a single week longer the conduct of the Democratic party in the Senate has deliberately disgraced the American Flag would have been discussed in the terms which it deserved by Republican Senators. That resolution offered by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, asking by whose authority the Stars and Stripes had been hauled down in Honolulu, would have been inquiry the Administration would have found it hard to answer.

The American Flag had been raised in Hawaii by the action of the regularly accredited Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States. It had been raised in response to the request of Hawaii in. It represented at once the moral and the military force of the United States. The flag had been raised and the Nation was humiliated by the order of an individual who, if he possesses any official status, occupies a position distinctly inferior to Minister Stevens. In his ridiculously bombastic letter to Provisional President Dole Mr. Cleveland said: "I have made choice of James H. Blount, one of our distinguished citizens, as my special commissioner to visit the Hawaiian Islands to make a report to me concerning the present status of affairs in that country." The Constitution declares the President:

He shall have power by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senate concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls. But the Congress may by law vest the appointment of such inferior officers as they think proper in the President alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.

Mr. Blount is not an Ambassador, a public Minister or Consul. The Minister to Hawaii nominated by President Harrison and confirmed by the Senate is still in office. He has not been recalled or suspended. He has been regularly accredited by the United States, entitled, while he continues in that office, to exercise the powers conferred upon him by statute and the Constitution. James H. Blount if there is any constitutional warrant for his appointment, is an "inferior officer," who has not the right either to undo the official acts of the official representatives of this President.

In ordering the individual whom he absurdly designates as "my special commissioner" to drag the symbol of the Republic in the dust, Mr. Cleveland has performed an act which bears every appearance of the unadmitted usurpation of power. The President of the United States is not an autocrat. He is merely the first servant of the Nation. The officials who are entitled to represent this country abroad cannot be described by any President "my commissioners." They are the commissioners and representatives of the American people, and their credentials are valid and worthless unless their appointment is confirmed by the Senate of the United States. The American people ask, with just and increasing indignation: By whose authority was the American Flag hauled down in Hawaii? Let the American President who has wilfully dishonored the Stars and Stripes answer if he can.

Prof. Pickering's Observations of the Eclipse of the Sun.

Things Which He Saw of Interest to the General Reader.

The Temperature Fell Three Degrees During Totality. The Beams of the Sun-Earth's Observations Unusually.

New York, April 26.—The Herald's Weather Correspondent gives a detail of total eclipses of the sun as observed by Prof. Pickering's party at Mina Aris as follows: Prof. Pickering has worked out some of the observations. He reports that the sun's brightness steadily decreased during the time elapsed during the entire period of the eclipse. The first contact, when the edge of the moon began to touch the edge of the sun, occurred at 7h 17m. a. m. The second contact, when the edge of the moon was at 8h 18m. The third contact, marking the cessation of the total phase, was registered at 8h 21m 50s, and the final contact, at which the moon left the sun's disc, at 8h 30m 10s. All these periods are, in local time.

Forty minutes after the first contact, about three minutes to 1 a. m., the light of the sun was observed changing to a sickly yellow hue, and there was a perceptible though faint fall in the air. At 8h 20m 10s, when the corona was visible a round moon before the operation had become total. During the period of totality there were in the east and west dark thin like rain clouds lowering on the horizon. The colors were now in full force, and the air, at the light, resembled that of a faint dawn. But generally it was less dark than at total eclipses.

Prof. Albrecht took observations at a point 900 feet higher than Prof. Pickering's, and the results have been obtained only through the telegraph.

The temperature fell three degrees during totality. It was specially notable, the observer considers, that the condensed shadow bands or "fringes" were similar to those produced by an oven or a fire upon a pond, having the character of a fast-wheel. None of these were more than two inches in breadth. They were from one to three feet apart. They were seen before and after totality; but, when they were faint, the variable disk of moon was very variable.

Prof. Pickering says the results of photographs obtained with the differential spectroscope give twenty lines in the "reversing layer" of the solar atmosphere, and the spectrum of gas lines just above the photosphere and known to contain the vapors of many elements commonly found on our globe.

Twelve of these brilliant colored spectra lines were seen through the telescope. This is the first time that these lines have been successfully photographed. Prof. Pickering also says that the entire spectroscopic and corona photographs taken on Sunday are very satisfactory and promise to yield important results.

Thirty-four seconds before the eclipse became total two rays of light were seen leaving from the corona, the terminal points corresponding to the horns of the new moon, and the cusps were observed in violent motion.

Before totality the corona showed a conical structure with a network of fine filaments, visible to the naked eye. There were four light streams from the corona; the two upper were short, or that is, had lower terminal prominences, were observed. Prof. Pickering estimates that they attained a height of 50,000 miles. The integrating spectroscope showed red and yellow lines, two green lines and one blue in the corona.

The prominences were fine and well defined, and the corona was unusually brilliant, with much detail.

The expedition is satisfied with the photometric results. Photographs taken with a double image prism were measured.
